The item of 126.71, placed to his credit in the above statement will be submitted in detail at your annual meeting to be disposed of as you may direct. Any information in reference to the matter will be cheerfully given to any citizen.

DISTRICT No. 1.

Summer Term. At my first visit the school appeared orderly and well classified. The closing examination showed fair improvement in all branches.

Winter Term. This term opened well and bid fair to be a profitable one. Owing to a severe storm at the closing examination, not many of the scholars were present. The improvement in Writing was highly commendable. There was not that promptness in Arithmetic that we desired. We think if Mr. M. would look a little more to the discipline of his school, his efforts, as a teacher would be very successful.

DISTRICT No. 2.

Summer Term. This school appeared well at commencement. The order was fair, and the scholars seemed to manifest a good degree of interest. On visiting it at close I found both teacher and scholars had been at work. The order was all that could be desired, and all classes showed a decided improvement. There was that perfect understanding between teacher and scholar, so pleasing to look upon. I was particularly pleased with the position of the scholars in their seats. Mrs. Thompson is a teacher of considerable experience, and ranks among our very best.

Winter Term. As this was taught by myself, I will briefly say for the scholars that with a few exceptions they applied themselves to their studies with a will thus making it an easy and pleasant task for their teacher to work with them. We were cheered and encouraged during the term by frequent visits from the parents and friends of the scholars, showing by their presence that they felt an interest in us. We closed our term hoping our time had been well improved.

DISTRICT No. 3.

Summer Term. This district retained the same teacher throughout the year. On visiting at commencement of the term found both teacher and scholars at work in earnest, with every prospect of a profitable term. We were however somewhat disappointed at our second visit. There was a certain air of embarrassment that we could not fail to notice, occasioned perhaps by our unexpected presence. We were sorry to see, particularly among the larger scholars, a lack of promptness in Arithmetic, and not that progress in Grammar we had anticipated. There was a fair degree of improvement among the smaller scholars.

Fall and Winter Term. There was a decided improvement at the last examination. The order was better than we have ever seen it. The first class in Arithmetic showed careful drill and close application, answering all questions with an accuracy and promptness we seldom see equaled. There was good improvement in Grammar. The specimens in Writing and Map Drawing showed much care and taste on the part of the scholars; also a good work done by the class in Book Keeping. We think Miss N. has some fine talent for teaching.

DISTRICT No. 4.

Summer Term. Fair improvement was shown, particularly in the art of Penmanship. At our visit at commencement of Winter Term, were pleased to again greet Mr. M. in the school room; feeling that as the school was under his instruction the previous term, he would know just where to commence with his scholars. This is a small school, there being very few large scholars. At our visit at close found there had been creditable improvement.

DISTRICT No. 5.

Summer Term. Miss L. has taught several terms in this district. The improvement of this term was very noticeable, though the order was not just what we hoped to see.

Winter Term. The district was very fortunate to secure the services of a teacher of such large experience as Mr. R. At our first visit it was plain to see that the right man was in the right place. The order was good which is always the first requisite. The closing examination showed a marked improvement in all branches, especially in Writing and Grammar. We consider the school a decided success.

DISTRICT No. 6.

This district acted wisely in again securing the services of the teacher of the previous year. We felt confident, when we found her again settled among her scholars, that everything would move along with regularity, and we were not disappointed. The closing examination of both Summer and Winter Term, showed a marked degree of improvement in all branches pursued. We were very much pleased with the class in Mental Arithmetic; quite difficult examples being performed with readiness in all the simple rules.

DISTRICT No. 7.

Summer Term. Miss H. came as a stranger among us with but little experience as a teacher, yet at our first visit we found her at home in the school-room, and was well pleased with her method of instruction. The order was hardly what we desired.

At the close all classes showed creditable improvement, and the order was much better than at commencement.

Fall Term. Mr. L. is an active and energetic teacher, one that labors for the interest of his scholars. This is one of our largest schools and we here find some of our best scholars. The school appeared orderly at commencement, and there was every reason to believe that this would be a successful term. The closing examination showed a thorough drilling on the part of the teacher, and much thought and study by the scholars. The first class in Arithmetic performed examples and gave reasons and explanations in a manner highly pleasing to us.

Winter Term. This opened under the same instruction. As the vacation was short, both teacher and scholars were prepared to enter at once upon their labors; and we found them doing all that could be required. The school closing suddenly we were unable to make our second visit, but feel free to say it was a profitable term.

DISTRICT No. 8.

This district had but one term, and this we were obliged to visit some time before its close; yet the school passed a very satisfactory examination. Much credit is due both teacher and scholars for the care they have taken of their new house. We scrutinized it closely, but scarce a scar or even a pencil mark could be found. We hope they will ever exercise the same care in regard to it.

DISTRICT No. 9.

Summer Term. I found the scholars at both visits orderly and seemingly interested in their studies. Miss Small has had but little experience in teaching, yet she has good methods of imparting knowledge and a faculty of gaining the good will of her pupils. All classes showed fair improvement.

Winter Term. This was under the same good discipline as the Summer Term. We were sorry to see a lack of confidence on the part of the scholars. And would here suggest that their parents and friends visit them more frequently; thereby encouraging and helping them to gain the confidence they so much need. The Writing Books exhibited by the class in Penmanship, were examples of neatness. On the whole the school passed a fair examination.

DISTRICT No. 10.

Summer and Fall Terms. Miss L. brought to this school a large experience and a well earned reputation. Good order was maintained throughout the term. We were sorry to learn that owing to the difficulties existing in the district, some parents were so unwise as to keep their children from school, thereby causing a loss to them and making it hard and unpleasant for the teacher. The final examination of both terms showed that the teacher had been faithful in her labors. We were satisfied with improvements made.

Winter Term. Mr. B. passed a very creditable examination, and the only fear we had in regard to his success, was his inexperience. At our first visit, it was evident that his was no enviable position, some of the large scholars being prejudiced against him. At our last visit we found that some had left the school, yet we believe that if the pupils and citizens of the district had labored with the teacher in his efforts, a more profitable term would have been the result.

DISTRICT No. 11.

Summer Term. The scholars are mostly small and when we considered their number with their uncomfortable seats were not surprised to find them a little noisy. As the school continued into July some of the scholars left before the closing examination. Those present showed a good degree of improvement. The school quite met our expectations.

Winter Term. For sufficient reason we did not visit at close. Miss Cummings is an experienced teacher and seems to understand the nature of her scholars. We found the school well classified and the order very good. The teacher and scholars seemed interested, and we saw no reason why this should not be a profitable term.

DISTRICT No. 12.

Summer Term. This is the smallest district in town, consequently it is difficult to awaken that degree of interest, among the scholars that we find in some of our larger schools. Miss S. is a faithful teacher, and we were pleased to find at close a noticeable improvement.

Winter Term. As I was not notified of the closing of this school in season, I visited it only at commencement. Then there was good order manifested, and the first classes in Reading and Arithmetic did exceedingly well. If the same interest continued throughout the term, we should judge the money in this district had been wisely expended.

CONCLUSION.

Aside from the separate report of each school, we submit to your attention a few general remarks. In the examination of our schools, it gives us pleasure to report that most of them have been successful, but still we do find some of them lacking. In some of our schools we have alluded to the improvement made in the different branches. The two branches in which improvement is particularly obvious, are Reading and Writing, especially the latter. Still we fear Reading is too much neglected, and the same is true of Spelling. We think the things most proper for scholars to learn, are those which they will be called upon to practice when they become men and women. And what part of an education is more practical through life, or in what branches is accuracy more important than Spelling and Writing? We hope our teachers and scholars will think of this.

Some of our large scholars have been so foolishly wise the past year as to leave their schools without sufficient cause and others to absent themselves entirely. Can they afford to do this? Can they afford to squander a term of school, not only deprive themselves, but by their influence partially destroy its usefulness to others? We feel to answer, no. In the performance of our duties we have endeavored to impress upon the minds of our scholars the importance of good order and regularity of attendance in our schools. In order that these may be carried into effect, much depends upon the parents and guardians of the pupils. We do not think teachers are responsible for all the defects in the schools. And here let us earnestly urge the presence of the parents and friends of the scholars, in the schoolroom. It not only shows that you feel an interest there, but it encourages the teacher, and is a stimulant to the scholar.

Now a few words in regard to our agents. The prosperity of our schools depends very much upon them. We should therefore be careful to select those men whom we feel will look well to the interests of their schools, and employ able and efficient teachers. There are but few offices in town to which more responsibility is attached than that of the school agent. Hence it is the duty of the town to see that their agents are properly qualified for their position. And here let me ask: Do we attend to this matter as we ought?

Text Books. Through the aid and advice of our former Supervisor we have secured a town uniformity in Readers. And in those schools where reading has been made a study, much good has resulted from their use. We would warn parents against making any change in text books through the advice of teachers without first consulting the S. S. Committee, who alone has the power to effect a change.

School Houses. District No. 8 has erected, during the past year, a nice and convenient house, at an expense of about $1460. No. 10 has made improvements on the inside of their house, and we hope soon to see a change in Nos. 1, 4, 9, 11. We trust that the year to come may witness greater interests and improvements in our schools and in all that concerns them. In closing we can only say that we have endeavored to discharge our duties faithfully, if we failed to perform them acceptably.

F. B. BLANCHARD, SUPERVISOR.
