DISTRICT NO. 1.

The summer term was taught by Miss Flora Starling. This school appeared well at the beginning of the term. The scholars were studious and well classified, and a very successful school was anticipated. Circumstances beyond control prevented a visit at the close, which was much regretted. It was believed that Miss S.'s labors were attended with good results.

The winter term was taught by Mr. O. F. Small, who was one of the teachers here the previous year. This teacher is diligent and thoroughly conscientious in his work, moral culture receiving its due share of attention; and his influence over the scholars is excellent. The government is mild, and resembles an indulgent parent's discipline more than that of an exacting teacher. The scholar's moral sense of right and justice is appealed to. The kindest relations seemed to exist between teacher and scholars,—a condition much to be desired in all our schools. The register showed a fine attendance. Of a class of five in history three never lost a recitation, the other two but two each.

DISTRICT NO. 2.

Miss Hattie R. Locke, teacher of the summer term. This school was largely composed of small scholars, of ages so difficult to interest and stimulate, and really learning the hardest lessons of their whole lives. Yet this was a quiet and orderly school, and all was accomplished that could be expected,—the closing examination giving evidence of much faithful work.

The winter term in charge of Mr. W. A. Anderson is still in session, and cannot be fully reported. At the several visits already made, there has been observed a rare executive ability on the part of the teacher, showing a capacity to govern well, and to go through with a large amount of daily work. Some scholars found here manifest an enthusiasm for learning seldom seen.

DISTRICT NO. 3.

Summer term, Miss H. R. Morrison, of Livermore, teacher.

Miss M. came highly recommended by the principal of the Farmington Normal School, where she graduated. Her methods of teaching were superior; and the influence exerted over the scholars was all that could be desired. Delicate health somewhat impaired this teacher's usefulness, yet if the scholars did not accomplish the amount of work expected of them, this was more than balanced in the excellent morale of the school, a condition imparted by this teacher in her daily example.

The fall term, of eight weeks, was taught by Miss A. May Miller, who also taught here two terms of last year. Her labors were attended with the same pleasant results as before. Miss M. is a worker in the school-room, and maintains good discipline. The scholars made commendable progress in the short time allotted them, and the term was concluded with one of the most satisfactory examinations witnessed during the year.

Mr. George W. Johnson, a senior member of Bowdoin College taught the winter term. Mr. J. is a good scholar, with strong literary tastes, and professes to enjoy his work in the school-room. It was feared that the scholars at the commencement of the school did not manifest that interest in their studies that was desired, but as the term moved on, there was an improvement in this respect. Much attention was given to composition and declamation and the scholars showed a fine drill in these exercises, which were pleasant and attractive parts of the examination, eliciting much praise from the parents and friends present, who expressed themselves well pleased with the school.

DISTRICT No. 4.

This district chose to have but one term during the year and this is in charge of Mr. Eben H. Ramsdell, who also taught here last year with such good results. It is a small school and has suffered this winter from irregular attendance. Those scholars who have attended school show good progress. Mr. R. is one of our best and most experienced teachers, and strives to do his whole duty. The school is still in session and cannot be fully reported.

DISTRICT No. 5.

This district has taken a new departure, and has employed the same teacher during the year, Mrs. Julia M. Thompson, whose schools are uniformly so successful, and who has this year fully sustained her previous reputation. The amount of work done here during the year, and its quality also, has been very gratifying, and such as promises much for the future of the school if continued with the same teacher at its head, which seems to be the desire of the district.

Both terms were closed with a general review of the studies, that reflected much credit upon teacher and scholars. The house was crowded with visitors.

A very pleasant feature of this school was the daily attention given to vocal music, which, with the aid of the organ—hired by the agent—was very entertaining, and added not a little to the elevating and refining influences here developed. The importance of this branch of education, so generally neglected in our country schools, cannot be over estimated. Our scholars should not be made to feel, that, what they are to learn in school, is to be with a view to enable them to earn money simply, but rather with a view to usefulness in the world, to be able to make pleasant and entertaining homes, and filling them with influences of love and refinement.

DISTRICT No. 6.

Summer term, Mrs. Julia M. Thompson, teacher. This was a short term, it being interrupted by the sickness and death of a brother of the teacher, which sad event made it necessary to close the school without an examination.

The winter term was taught by Mr. Frank B. Blanchard, whose methods of teaching were so fully endorsed last year, and who here met with his usual good success. There is excellent scholarship found in this school.

DISTRICT No. 7.

Summer term, Miss Lillie M. Newman, teacher. This was Miss Newman's first school, but with a thorough preparatory course, and with excellent natural endowments, she was able to bring to her work all those qualities so essential to success in teaching. The government of her school was all that could be desired, and maintained with great kindness and amiability, showing a "disposition and temper suitable to be an instructor of youth," as is specified by the laws of the State—traits ever to be encouraged and sought for in our teachers. The success attending this teacher's first efforts, may well be an incentive to continue in the same pleasant pursuit.

This district has made a beginning toward furnishing its school room, having purchased a large globe and a full set of outline maps.

Mr. W. R. Anthoine, who taught here last year, returned to the same charge this winter. The school was comprised of about the same scholars as before, with the addition of a few from other districts. The same ability on the part of the teacher was observed as was mentioned in the report of last year. This school ranks first in town in point of order, and in scholarship will compare favorably with any.

DISTRICT No. 8.

Miss Henrietta Cobb, of Buxton, taught the summer term. This was a small school, but the teacher succeeded in awakening a good degree of interest, and made the term a pleasant and profitable one. The order was excellent.

The winter term was taught by Mr. Carleton Sawyer, of Cumberland. Teaching is Mr. Sawyer's chosen profession, and he has evidently made no mistake in his calling. His heart is in his work, and notwithstanding he has ways and methods of his own, they are good ones.

DISTRICT No. 9.

This district has had three terms of about eleven weeks each, and all these have been taught by Miss Amelia C. Cram, of Deering, a fact, which, in itself, implies a general acceptance on the part of the people of this teacher's efforts. These terms have been characterized by good order and studious habits. This teacher is active and persevering, and seems much at home in the school-room. The summer term was closed with a very satisfactory examination. Many of the parents were present.

DISTRICT No. 10.

The summer and fall terms were taught by Miss Emily A. Norton. It is seldom that we have found evidence of such thorough and intelligent scholarship as was brought out in the examination of this young teacher, and with a good share of perseverance there was no fear of failure in the first trial at teaching. Both terms were a success.

The winter term was in care of Miss Sadie B. Hawkes, this being her tenth school. It is always pleasant to note a steady and marked progress in a school from term to term, as has been the case here. Both teachers have been unremitting in their labors, and have done an excellent work. Miss H. has a happy faculty of imparting instruction. The closing examination was thorough, and all present were impressed with the fact that the school had been one of uncommon usefulness.

DISTRICT No. 11.

Miss Clara Woodman, teacher of the summer term. This was Miss W.'s first school and she made a good beginning, being able to interest these scholars throughout the term. The order was good, and it is with pleasure that we are able to report this school a success.

The winter term was taught by Miss Susie E. McDonald, who has had, from time to time, this school in charge for several years, and whose services have been very acceptable to the district. This teacher does her work in a thorough and able manner, and governs well.

DISTRICT No. 12.

The summer term was taught by Miss Ida M. Washburn, another beginner in the work, and who determines to succeed.

The school was very small, having only fifteen scholars, and these quite young in years. All was accomplished by this teacher that could be expected of any one.

The winter term brought in a much larger class of scholars, —some of whom are well advanced in their studies— with Mr. Charles A. Moses as teacher. At the visits made to this school, we found the scholars studious and manifesting a good degree of interest. The improvement was good.

In presenting a report of our schools separately, we have endeavored to give a fair and impartial statement of the impressions received as the schools have been visited from time to time. It is gratifying to be able to report no failures of teachers in any of our schools. While those who have not come up to a high standard of excellence have been among the exceptions, the most have done faithful service, and have advanced the cause of education in town.

Our agents have been awake to the importance of their duties, which fact has contributed not a little to the good results realized.

It is believed that more attention than usual has been given to the work of adding useful furniture to our school-room, whereby our teachers can work to a much better advantage. There are some houses however, sadly deficient in these aids, not even possessing a chair safe to offer to a visitor.

Our schools are well furnished with text books, and no changes have been recommended during the year.

The attention of the town is called to one inconvenience that the supervisor has met with in making the final report. Most of our winter schools begin at a time, to close the very week it is necessary to finish the duties of the year, crowding into one week the work of visiting half a dozen schools, besides the labor of preparing for the printer, a hastily written, and necessarily imperfectly prepared report. By a little care this difficulty might be avoided either by commencing the winter terms a little earlier, or postponing the annual meeting one week, as is the custom of most towns in the State.

At the present time of writing, there are no less than five schools in session.

We cannot close this report without acknowledging the many favors and courtesies received from our citizens in our round of duties during the past year. Parents, and teachers, and scholars, have cordially seconded any efforts your supervisor has made to advance the cause of education. For these kindnesses we extend our sincerest thanks, and our best wishes are for the future welfare of our schools. To all workers in this common cause of love and humanity we bid God speed.
